Machine Driven by Warren P. Snyder Overturned in Crash Today

CAR BADLY DAMAGED

Driver of Other Machine Has Injury on Right Side and Possible Rib Fracture

One man was injured and another had a narrow escape this morning when his car turned over after a collision. Warren P. Snyder, supervising principal of the Bristol public schools, escaped being hurt when his car was struck and turned over by a machine driven by Joseph J. Grillo, 52, Adelaide street, Hartford, Conn.

Grillo sustained contusion of the right side and possible fracture of ribs. He was treated at the Harriman hospital.

Mr. Snyder was driving on Wilson avenue toward the Harriman public school building when, according to the police, the car of Grillo came out of Monroe street. The left front of the Grillo car is reported to have struck the right rear end of the Snyder car, turning it over. Mr. Snyder was alone in the car and escaped injury. His car was considerably damaged.

Grillo was driving a car owned by his brother, John, 111 George street, Hartford, Conn. The Grillo car was not seriously damaged.

"Pigskin Parade" Is Big Laugh-Fest at Grand

There are riotous runs and dizzy duck-kicks, foolish forwards and cuckoo coaches, hilarious half-backs and tuncful touchdowns in the grid-iron musical, "Pigskin Parade," opening tonight at the Grand Theatre.

The picture which features Stuart Erwin, Johnny Downs, Arline Judge, Betty Grable, Patsy Kelly, Jack Haley, the Yacht Club Boys, Dixie Dunbar, Anthony Martin and Judy Garland, is a crazy campus caper with a procession of swiny songs and a never-ceasing barrage of looney laughter.

More melodious than "Thanks A Million," more side-splitting than "Sing, Baby, Sing," "Pigskin Parade" turns loose a legion of dancing pals and their singing pals in an uproarious yarn of a fresh water college that plays the big game of the season amid a tidal wave of titters with the powerful Boola-Boola team—just because somebody mailed the right letter to the wrong place!

After a series of hilarious games, Yipee and Boola-Boola lock horns for the big game, which works up to a rib-racking climax of mad mirth in one of the craziest football games ever seen in a harried coach's wildest nightmares.

TWO SMALL FIRES HERE DUE TO SHORT CIRCUITS

Both Are Quickly Discovered and Easily Conquered by Firemen

LOSSES ARE TRIFLING

Two fires were caught at the start by the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department, one Saturday afternoon and the other one yesterday morning. Both were quickly extinguished and the damage done was very slight.

Yesterday morning at 12.30 a passer-by noticed a flickering flame in the machine shop of S. B. Ardrey & Sons, Mr. Conley, who saw the slight blaze notified the firemen who went to the scene and summoned a representative of the firm. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

Chief Hagerman thinks that the heavy rain seeped through onto some of the wiring and caused a short circuit. The damage was slight.

Saturday afternoon a short circuit in the residence of Louis Gann, 1631 Pond street, caused a blaze which ignited the window curtain. Firemen were called and the flames were confined to the one spot. Damage was slight.

HOLIDAY PLANTS SHOULD BE GIVEN BEST OF CARE IN ORDER TO LENGTHEN PERIOD OF BEAUTY; SOME HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS GIVEN FOR ATTENDING THEM

If suggestions given by those familiar with care of Christmas plants are followed out, it will be found that such will give forth their beauty for a much longer period.

Many of the holiday plants when taken home are subjected to conditions entirely different than they have been previously in the greenhouses. Hence exceeding care is needed.

Hints given on the care of the following will be most welcome to plant-lovers:

Poinsettias: This plant requires a warm, even temperature, and should be kept moderately wet. A sudden change in temperature, a draft or dryness will result in loss of foliage almost immediately. Do not allow the temperature to drop below sixty degrees at night. With proper care, the poinsettia should bloom until about January 10. After the blooms have faded, cut off the top, and store the pot in a cellar or some dark place where the plant can be kept dry. About the latter part of April, repot, place in a sunny window, water regularly, and vigorous new growth will start. Feed when new growth starts.

Cyclamen: The most common fault in caring for this plant is keeping it too warm, and giving it insufficient water. Always keep in the coolest part of the house; do not allow the temperature to be over sixty degrees at night. It is usually necessary to water twice a day—morning and evening. Use care in watering so moisture does not touch the central growth. It is best to water by setting in a saucer of water, so the moisture can be absorbed from the bottom of the pot. The cyclamen requires a medium light. With good care, it should last until the warm days of April. After blooming, gradually withhold water and by May 1 stop watering altogether. Keep pot in a cool dark place until September. Then repot and begin watering. Feed sparingly. Pot the bulb so the top is from one-fourth to one-half above the surface of the soil, or it will rot.

Jerusalem Cherries: Keep fairly cool, water moderately and place in good light. Excessive heat, poor light or dryness will cause the plant to drop its fruit. This plant is very sensitive to gas in the air. Shower often with fine water spray.

Hydrangea: This plant requires an abundance of water when blooming. It should be kept as cool as possible and out of drafts.

Azaleas: The cooler they are kept in the home, the longer they will last. Place in a good light, and give plenty of water. The bloom should last about two to three weeks under proper conditions. After the flowers have faded, remove, feed and water regularly, and plunge pot out of doors when warm weather arrives, pruning occasionally to keep healthy.

Cineraria: Requires an abundance of water, but can be given too much. If kept in a cool room with a humid atmosphere, should last from two to three weeks.

Primulas: Water by setting pot in a tub. If watered from above and care is not used to keep moisture from the crown, rot may set in. Also, do not allow water to fall on leaves of this plant. Keep in a moderate temperature and give good light, feed about every four weeks, keep the old blooms picked off, and the plant will bloom all through the spring months.

CHILDREN MAKE MERRY AT THE LEGION PARTY

Santa Claus Pays Visit With Gifts, Program Of Dances And Songs

206 CHILDREN SERVED

Two hundred and six happy children made merry yesterday afternoon at a jolly Christmas party in the home of Robert W. Bracken Post, American Legion, Radcliffe street.

Santa Claus, with his supply of gifts, "cats" that highly pleased the boys and girls; a program that kept their eyes wide made for a merry Yuletide party—and when they left they were eager to tell their parents and little chums about the "grand time" they had had.

The hosts and hostesses on this particular occasion were ex-service men, connected with Bracken Post; and women who are affiliated with the Auxiliary. The two committees in charge had done their work well, being well aided by other members of the two organizations who rallied gladly when asked to help. There were 20 men and women present to help with the afternoon's festivities.

Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., was master of ceremonies.

A program presented by the Granzow Sisters, of Croydon, aided by their pupils included the following: Song and dance, Marie Claire Sorenson; toe ballet, The Miltz Kyones; song and dance, Grace Leister; song, "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town," Marie Claire Sorenson, who then hurriedly left the room, to be accompanied on her return by Santa Claus himself. The jolly old fellow impersonated by William Mack, shook hands with the tots, and asked their desires for the holiday. Presentation of some gifts was in charge of past commander William Griffith. Later ice cream and cake were served.

The committees arranging for the affair included: Auxiliary, President Mrs. Harry Wessaw; Mrs. Marvel Durham; past presidents, Mrs. Dorothy Fechtenburg, Mrs. Harold H. Dettmer, Mrs. Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr. Post committee: Past Commander Samuel Hardy, chairman; Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., Marvel Durham, Fred Bryner, Harry Wessaw.

"THE SEASON'S GREETINGS"

Citizens of Bucks County:

Undoubtedly due to the approaching holiday season and the many things we have to do, some of us have forgotten to purchase the Christmas Seals which were sent to us. It is hoped that we may expect these belated contributions promptly. Your purchase of these seals help to make "a Merry Christmas" for many a kiddie in our county. Each year in the United States alone approximately 10,000 children die of tuberculosis, despite the fact that it is curable and preventable.

Your contribution to this work is an investment rather than a gift. You pay for Christmas seals only once but they work for you all the year 'round.

Money paid for these tiny seals helps spread the knowledge that saves lives.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and Good Health.

Sincerely yours,
HAROLD H. KELLER,
President,
Bucks County Tuberculosis Society.

MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY

Nazi Germany doesn't seem to like Germans who win Nobel prizes. With Hitlerite wrath still seething over award of the 1935 peace prize to Karl von Ossietzky, courageous pacifist, word comes that another Nobel prize winner has lost his German citizenship. He is Thomas Mann, distinguished novelist, who won the Nobel prize for literature, back in 1929 before the world took Nazism seriously.

Mann's forfeiture of German citizenship has no connection, of course, with the Nobel prize or with the case of Von Ossietzky. Although fully qualified to pass all tests of Aryanism, and not of political affiliations subjecting him to immediate persecution, Herr Mann voluntarily exiled himself from Germany when the Nazis came into power in 1933. He quit his native land, not because he was in personal danger, but because he was a German whose principles did not permit him to submit to Nazi rule.

FARMERS' INCOME

According to the experts of the bureau of economics of the federal agriculture department, farmers' incomes for the present year are likely to reach pretty close to eight billions of dollars. This includes receipts from marketed crops and payments from the government. The latter were noticeably less in October of this year than they were in October of last year. The comparison is that of 22 millions contrasted with 62 millions. But a partial explanation of that is that conservation payments are moving slowly. The November and December figures are expected to show much greater payments in the form of conservation benefits.

One of two reports just made public placed the October cash income of farmers from sale of products at $886,000,000 as compared with $752,000,000 in September and $802,000,000 in October of last year. The other report showed a decline of one point in the bureau's general index of prices received by farmers for their products between October 15 and November 15. The index number, 120, for November 15, however, was twelve points higher than it was a year ago.

The rise in farmers' cash income in October this year over last was attributed chiefly to larger sales of cotton and hogs and to the higher prices of cotton, potatoes and dairy products.

Arizona asks the Government for a seacoast on the Pacific. It is felt this would be more economical than continuing the Florida canal due west.

Osteopaths report that three out of five have one leg longer than the other. But the rest, of course, pays taxes, too, in indirect ways.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, June 17, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

On last Monday evening the employees of Livingston Mills formed a relief association. The names of the officers chosen for the first year are as follows: John Dettelson, president; Charles Helling, secretary; Charles W. Peirce, Jr., treasurer; Daniel Harkins, John S. Worrell, Edwin Ford, John Booz and Randall Appleton, relief committee. The initiation fee is $1, and the weekly pay to a sick member is $5.

Mr. George T. Pierson, of the firm of the Bristol Rolling Mill Company, arrived in Bristol yesterday evening, to make the preliminary arrangements for the erection of their buildings. Active operations will commence next week.

The peach crop promises to be enormous.

The street committee were engaged yesterday in inspecting the condition of the highways.

A. J. Hibbs has sold his property on Mill street, consisting of his dwelling house, store, restaurant and shoe store, to John McOwen for $17,000. The property has about 76 feet front on Mill street.

We think that a large hotel in Bristol, on the banks of the Delaware, suitable for the accommodation of 500 people—for a summer resort—with all the conveniences and appliances that might be attached to it, could be made profitable, and would be an ornament to the town. That such a house would be patronized next year to its utmost capacity there is no doubt. And a gross income of ten or 15 hundred dollars per day would soon pay for the structure. Thousands of persons in attendance at the Centennial will be forced to seek suburban quarters—and other thousands will prefer to do so, on account of the cool and quiet enjoyment of a good night's sleep. Besides it will be a matter of economy to lodge and breakfast here—then take an early boat or train and spend the day in the city.

The new board of school directors met on Monday, 7th instant. Messrs. John W. Bailey, Jacob S. Young, W. B. Baker and John Ward, M. D., being present. An organization was effected by the election of John W. Bailey, president; Jacob S. Young, secretary; Dr. W. B. Baker, treasurer. The secretary read a communication from David H. Stackhouse, declining the office of school director, whereupon Charles E. Scott was elected to fill the vacancy. The tax rate for 1875 was laid at 7½ mills, being the same rate as the previous year. During the coming school year, the board desires putting new desks in the high school room, and purchasing a lot for a new school house in the upper portion of the town. More commodious buildings are made necessary by the rapid increase in the number of pupils, many of whom were entirely without desk accommodation during last winter.

Bristol Boarding School—Today's exercises of this institution will close a successful career of 15 years. The Peirce sisters after a faithful and conscientious charge of duty through the whole of this period have earned the right to a respite from their labors and we are glad to learn that an ample remuneration to themselves has crowned their success in all other respects. Many dear recollections of scholars will be cherished for years to come of the happy hours spent in their quiet home. The community will regret that so good a school should not be continued in our midst, and it is to be hoped that some suitable successor to the Misses Peirce may be found at an early date.

William C. Barrieks was admitted to practice as an attorney of the several courts of Bucks County.

The anniversary of the Union Sunday School at Fallsington was held on last Sunday afternoon. There was a large turn-out of children as well as parents and friends. The treasurer's report showed a balance of some $70 on hand. The secretary's report showed a list of about 80 scholars, with a good average attendance. No session of the school has been omitted for any cause. Addresses were made by Rev. Messrs. Rodgers, Brinkloe and E. G. Harrison.

The first annual meeting of the Union Building & Loan Company of Bristol was held last Monday evening at the engine house hall. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Jonathan Milnor; secretary, Samuel Swain; treasurer, Charles T. Iredell; directors, Peter Blomberg, Charles E. Wright, Jonathan Lovett, William Lauderbough, John McDonnell, William A. Gilton, William H. Hall, Henry Mitchell, and L. Paxson Booz.

RECIPES

Chocolate Nut Clusters

Now for another easy one. One-half pound milk chocolate, two cups peanuts, coarsely chopped, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Melt chocolate in the top of double boiler. Add salt and nuts and drop from tip of a teaspoon on waxed paper. Set aside to harden. Coarsely-chopped English walnuts may be substituted for the peanuts.

KITCHEN WISDOM

Tea stains may be removed while they are still fresh by pouring boiling water through them from a height. If neglected, they are more difficult to remove and should be wet with cold water, covered with glycerine and allowed to stand for about three hours before washing in cold water with soap.

These troublesome stains also may be soaked in milk for several hours, or in a strong solution of sugar and water.

Sometimes when it is not convenient to remove the linen from the table immediately to take out the stain, it is a good plan to cover the spot with powdered starch. If this is done, the stain may be easily washed out.

Fruit stains on table linen are much more easily removed if the stained part is stretched tight in an embroidery frame and placed over a bowl or pan. Then boiling water poured directly on the offending spot usually is sufficient to take it out.

"LOVE'S LITANY" by Hazel Livingston

CHAPTER XXIII

Christie tried hard to understand when Donald talked about the work that he was planning, but she couldn't. She couldn't see how any one could think that a bare, dingy laboratory could be more interesting than real live people and their problems. Why give up a perfectly good practice to work on theories that might come to nothing at all? But after the first burning resentment passed, she stopped worrying about it. It was Donald's life. He knew what he wanted to do with it. She wouldn't interfere.

After all, she had her life, and he didn't interfere with that. Here was the house. The new house that was finished, and furnished and financed at last.

He scolded a little, but he let her have her way. He had had ideas about a maid and a gardener to get the first digging and planting done.

"Christie, you can't work around this place like a farm hand!"

"No, but I can work like a pioneer, can't I? If I want to?"

It wasn't just the sort of partnership she had planned. She had thought of working with him, in some vague, romantic way. Instead, he had his work and she had hers.

When he talked about things she couldn't understand, she just thought about something else—the maple chair she found for almost nothing in Balk's bargain basement, or the remnant of inlaid linoleum so heavy and perfectly marked, you'd swear it was really tile!

But it wasn't as bad as she thought it would be, either, for she never quite so broke as he predicted. Someone always sent a check at the critical moment.

She was really very happy, and in all the years of his life he had never known such content.

"You know, I'm actually doing what I've wanted to do all my life!" he told her, over and over.

But what pleased her most was the joy he took in their house. She loved the way he brought people home to dinner, the last moment, it never bothered her that there was nothing but beans, or scrambled eggs. It never worried her that she was wearing an old smock and that she'd forgotten to comb her curls.

Aunt Nettie would have been truly horrified if she could have seen them and their sketchy, hospitable menu.

She chose not to see them. Few of the friends of the family did. The young people whom Donald brought home for dinner, or who dropped in informally in the evenings, were for the most part students, or men who were interested in Donald's work.

It wasn't until her mother-in-law's first visit, which was incidentally, her last, that Christie really learned that life in the little house on the hill wasn't just the sort that the world would expect of a young man of Donald Latham's position.

Not even Donald's gloomy reception of the news that his mother was coming worried her.

"She won't stay long. She's not much on roughing it," he said.

Christie thought of Spanish Pass and the Platt's house, with the two tin buckets in the kitchen, one for drinking water, one for wash water. Of the "cooler" under the loose board in the kitchen floor. Of the gaping windows that had never been glassed, the left upstairs and the "front door" downstairs that opened out on nothing but air, because they'd never got around to building the front veranda. Now that was roughing it.

But this . . .

She thought of her wedding present dishes and silver, her gleaming blue and white bathroom, her kitchen stove with the oven thermometer.

Who could behold such charm and comfort and not love it? Roughing it, indeed!

She sang as she put the best persimmons on the table bed, and arranged marigolds from the garden, in a copper bowl.

She even put on one of the trousseau dinner dresses while the roast was cooking, and she was waiting for Donald to drive his mother up from the train.

They were a little late, but that didn't bother her. It just gave her a little more time to put the finishing touches to the salad, and whip some cream for the pie.

She was so happy, so proud, so sure that everything was going to be just right, until they came, and she saw that tight look around Donald's mouth, and the line between his eyes, and knew that something had gone wrong already.

"What a dear, quaint little place!" his mother said, laughing

"You mean your room. No, I couldn't possibly take it. I'll just sleep on the couch in the living room. I sleep so badly anyway it won't matter in the least."

"But you must take this room!" Christie was thinking of the best sheets—and the lumpy couch, which would never, never do for one who didn't like roughing it.

"Certainly not!" Eve Latham's voice was crisp. "Now don't cross me, I'm one of those managing mothers-in-law, as Donny has told you already, I'm sure."

She walked over to the mirror looked at her softly waved brown hair, picked up Christie's new powder puff, threw it down again.

"Fourteen new lines since morning. Don't ever grow old, Christie

"You simply must help me save Donny before it's too late!"

and looking around, and embracing her new daughter-in-law, at one and the same time. "How well you look, dear. Though I confess I should hardly have recognized you. You know the only time I saw you were all white satin and veil—you were lovely but, of course, all brides look alike!"

"But I dare say you wouldn't have recognized me, either. I look so much better at night. Donny will tell you. It's the makeup. Such is life after all! Imagine you children actually building on this end of the world lot. I thought, of course, you would sell it, or hold it for posterity, or something. Where shall I leave my things?"

As she spoke she shed a fur coat on the sofa, gloves and bag on the table and tossed her veiled little hat on the most comfortable chair.

"Now you mustn't go to the least bother for me," she said brightly, to Christie, who was hurrying toward the kitchen, because she thought she smelled the biscuits scorching. "Donny will tell you I eat almost nothing."

"You'll eat the fatted calf Christie spent the day preparing for you, Eve, darling!"

"Of course, dear, if it will make Christie happy. What else I do, dear? I know I'll owe the salad. I'm a famous salad-maker."

"I'm afraid it's all made Mrs. Latham."

Christie wanted to say "Eve as Donald had told her to, but she just couldn't. So she hurried on. "And if you'll come with me, I'll show you your room—"

'ARMED' BEARS

ANKARA—(INS)—Bears—wielding woodmen's hatchets as weapons—have killed three men in East Anatolia, according to reports here.

Falls of snow in the Anatolian mountains had driven the bears down to the valleys, to spread terror among the peasants. In two days alone, these bears killed three men. In two cases, the victims lost their lives through injuries inflicted with their own hatchets which the bears had torn out of their hands and used against them. The third man, Ali Mahmut, died of fright after he was set upon by a bear while he was cutting wood in the forest.

BURGLAR COMPLAINS

VIENNA—(INS)—After working for three hours to open the safe of an important wholesale firm in Vienna, a burglar found it contains only 30 Austrian schillings. Unable to suppress his bitter disappointment, the burglar sat down at the office typewriter and, on the firm's newspaper, he wrote a stiff complaint, ending: "I was hungry, but I should not have thought that you were just as broke as I am."

AMSTERDAM—(INS)—A world league against the bombardment of civil population during warfare has been founded here under the name of "Humanitas." Nation-wide branches are to be built up in Great Britain, France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey.

SNAP IT UP

Cheese and crackers and cracker-spreads are familiar companions with the salad bowl. But go one step further, and put a little cheese directly into your vegetable salad mixture.

Crumbed Roquefort cheese is a tangy addition to mixed vegetables, served with French dressing. Snappy American cheese may be used, if preferred.

While we are on the subject of salad hints, have you noticed that chicken salad often is flat, in spite of the addition of diced celery, stuffed olives, greens and dressing. Try adding a few salted almonds, whole or chopped, to give fresh zest.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD — Twenty-four hours after seeing "Camille," I am still under the spell of Garbo's magnificent performance. As Marguerite Gautier, the Swedish actress reaches the peak of her career, and makes all the other glamorous stars of Hollywood seem pale wreaths by comparison.

Here is a story told many times on stage and screen, but the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer version, directed by George Cukor, is immeasurably the finest that I have seen. It is well nigh perfect in every department.

As if inspired by Miss Garbo's performance, the rest of the cast rise to new heights of acting. Robert Taylor's Armand is his first serious contribution to the screen. Lenore Ulric, as the vulgar, malicious Olympe, gives a portrayal that should send Hollywood producers crowding to her door. Laura Hope Crews, Rex O'Malley, Henry Daniell rate cheers.

So do Zoe Akins, Frances Marion and James Hilton for their adaptation.

If Greta Garbo in "Camille" is not Hollywood's greatest dramatic actress in her greatest role, then I have been bewitched.

To descend from the sublime to the ridiculous, there is the woman in Seattle who has written to Clark Gable offering to cut off her long hair so he can use it for a beard in "Parnell."

Mr. Gable, who appreciates the intent, is replying that Hollywood whiskers are synthetic, not real hair.

You Asked Me and I'm Telling You! Joseph Creelman, New York City: Ginger Rogers' hair is now virtually back to its natural red and will remain that way at least until she finishes her new co-starring picture with Astaire, "Stepping Out." She went brownette for "Mother Carey's Chickens," then the film was postponed.

Both Simone Simon and James Stewart are frankly nervous over their roles in "Seventh Heaven." Remaking a classic means fighting a halo that time gives to pictures that win great favor. Stewart confesses that he saw the silent version three times when he was a movie fan in his home town, Indiana, Pa. Simone got her first glimpse of the Janet Gaynor portrayal only a short time ago in a studio projecting room. She also attended the play as given by the Federal theaters here.

The largest Christmas party out our way will undoubtedly be that of Director W. S. Van Dyke. It is his annual custom to hold open house on Dec. 25, and all his friends are invited to partake of Yule cheer.

Last year, 497 responded. This year, Van expects 600, but wouldn't be surprised if the total reached a thousand.

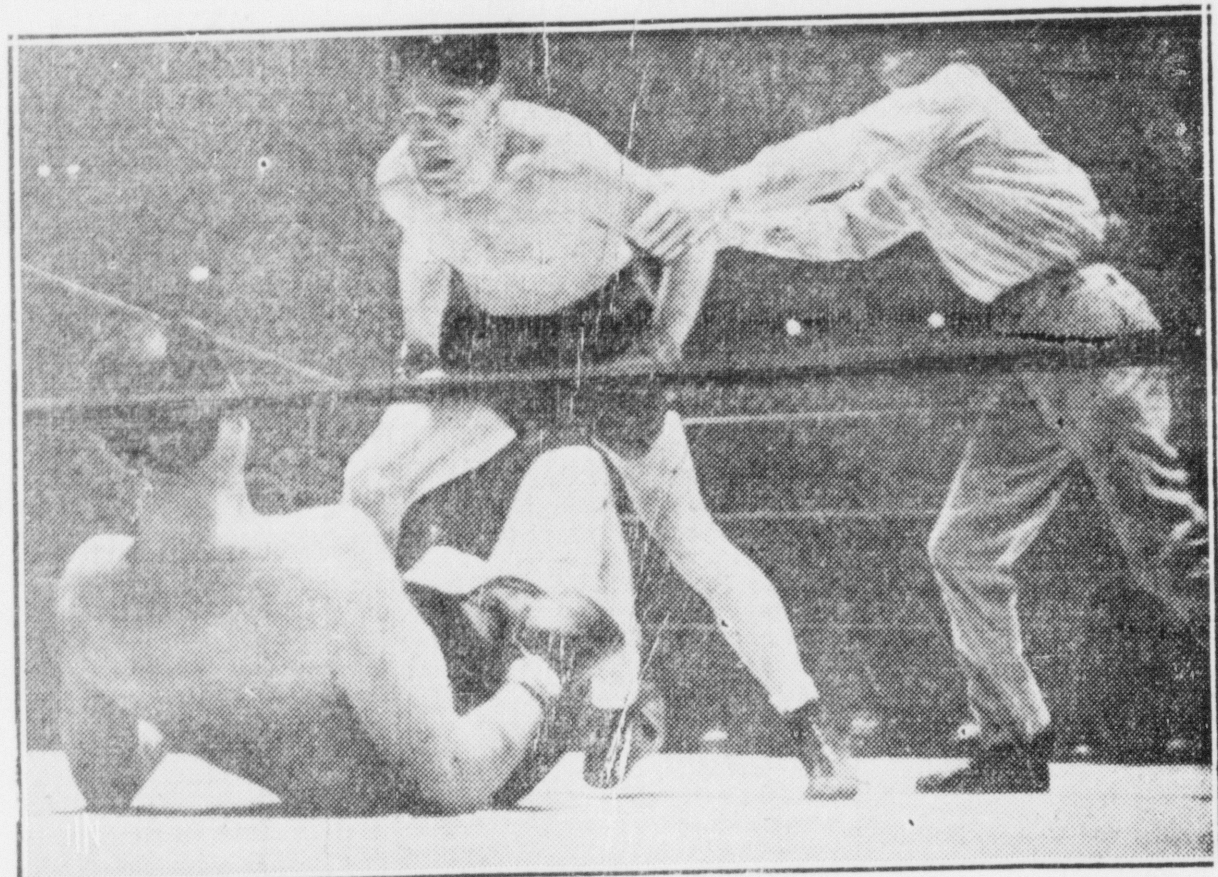

Here and There in Hollywood. . . . Edna May Oliver is threatening police action against an artist who persists in trying to sell her a portrait of herself. . . . The Brian Donlevy-Marjorie Lane honeymoon will be a trip to New York via the canal. That is, if the ship strike ends in time. . . . Are Gertrude Niesen and Craig Reynolds trying to set a record or something?

He has dated her every day for five weeks. . . . On an R-K-O set, Elizabeth Allan, Eric Blom and Margot Grahame gathered around a radio and openly wept as Edward David Windsor gave his final broadcast to the British empire. . . . The same scene was repeated on every set where English actors were present. All studios allowed them to stop work and listen to the speech. . . . The change in rulers will not curtail the Hollywood exodus to London for the coronation. Dolores Del Rio and Cedric Gibbons are the latest film pair to announce plans for the trip.

Today's Puzzle: The father of what actress, married to a Hollywood well-known, will have to go on the dole any minute?

Bob Pastor, 183-pound "David," is shown standing over the fallen body of Ray Impellittere, 235-pound giant, as the bell saved the Imp from a knock-out in the sixth round of their bout in New York. Pastor came on to finish the job in the seventh.

Thank you, Auntie Maisie, for that lovely
ANTIMACASSAR!

And thank you for the purple crocheted bedroom slippers with pompoms on the toes. Thank the girls for the hand-painted china hair-receiver—and little Benny for the Indian's head on leather. Father thanks you for the embroidered sleeve suspenders too!

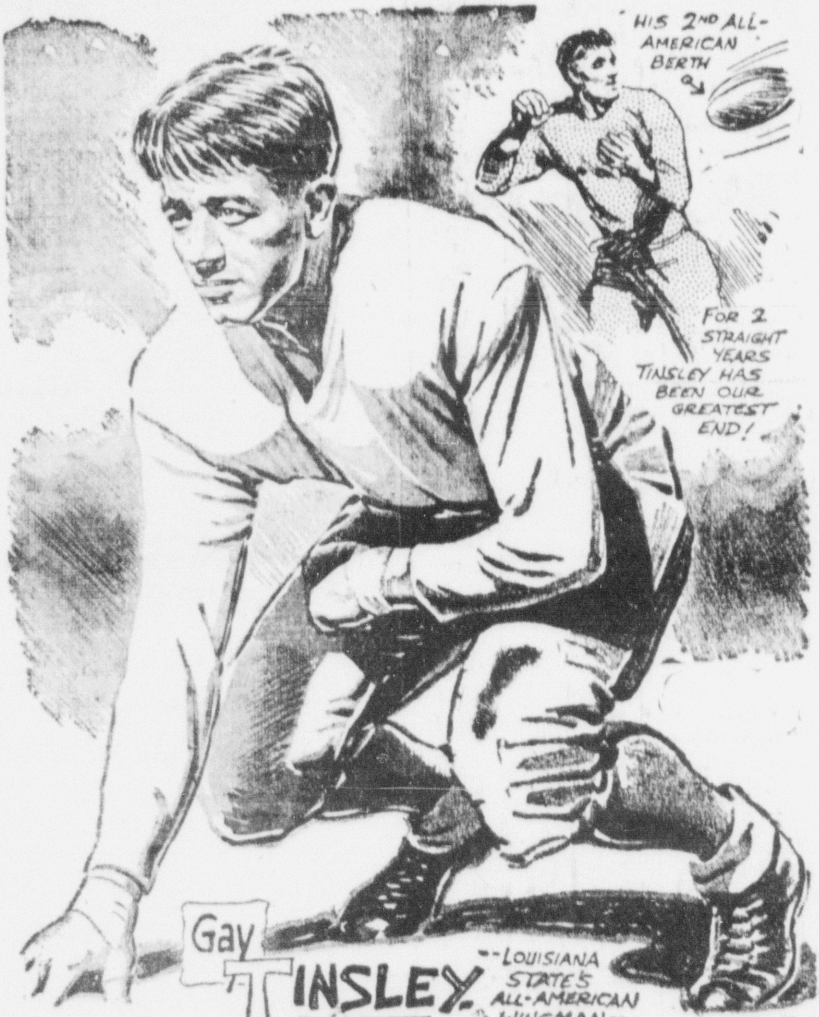

It was a lovely box. There was nothing in it we could ever use or want or hope to see again. It was a lovely box—we're awfully glad we won't be getting it this year!

Advertising, more than any other factor, is responsible for the welcome change in Aunt Maisie's gift boxes! The advertisements know what people are going to want, ahead of time—and they tell Aunt Maisie. The result is, gifts you're glad to get! Gifts that cost less in time, money and effort than those the dear old relatives used to send.

Aunt Maisie calls her reading of the advertisements in this newspaper "keeping up to date." You probably call yours "scientific shopping." Whether you're shopping for yourself, your family or for Christmas, they tell you accurately not only WHAT—but WHERE and HOW MUCH and WHY and, if you read them carefully, even WHICH. Let them help you make your budget as well as your gift list truly grateful.

The Terrific Tinsley

By BURNIE

For two straight years America's outstanding wingman has been the strapping 200-pounder from the bayou country, Gaynell Tinsley of Louisiana State.

Again an almost unanimous choice as All-American flankman, Tinsley was slightly overshadowed this season by the colorful and dramatic figure of Larry Kelly, Yale's sensational pass-snatching wing.

However, despite the New Haven Irishman's undeniable genius, Tinsley is unquestionably the superior end, technically speaking. The Louisiana Lulu is the greatest mechanical player to cover the wing position that the game has seen in many a day. Gay is no show-off, and lacks Kelly's flare for drama, but the Dixie dynamo is a coach's player, striking terror into the opposition.

Incomparable on the defense and making life miserable for opposing safety men, Tinsley is a formidable cog in the powerful Louisiana State grid juggernaut. His terrific charge has been a big factor in the terrifying Louisiana attack, which has scored more points this year than any other major grid team.

Tinsley will be seen in action once more, and after this post season showing it will be farewell to a player who will go down in history as a gridiron immortal.
